Sister Rose Pacatte, F.S.P.

Why is it that horror films can engage human fear and assuage it at the same time? Do horror films carry a deeper meaning than merely wanting to “scare the hell out of us” as the great film director Alfred Hitchcock used to say? Award-winning film critic and writer Sister Rose Pacatte, F.S.P. will explore the theological and symbolic relationship between Catholicism, horror films, and our deepest fears and social concerns as well as critical and spiritual ways to engage in film-watching.
