Archbishop Gustavo Rodriguez Vega of the Yucatan, Mexico, is pictured greeting children at Mission of Friendship's after-school care program.

MÉRIDA, Yucatán, México—Archbishop Gustavo Rodriguez Vega of Yucatán, Mexico, recently made his first visit to the Mission of Friendship in Mérida, a longtime outreach of the Diocese of Erie and the Archdiocese of Yucatán.

The archbishop assumed his post in July and wanted to get acquainted with the Mission of Friendship, says Cari Serafin, associate director of Diocesan and International Missions.

Archbishop Rodriguez Vega visited the mission's after-school care program, day care center, medical clinic and Arimogos sponsorship office.

"Patricia Pipkin, coordinator of the mission, reported that it was a day of great joy for the staff and children," according to Serafin.

Mission of Friendship is in its 44th year of service to the people of the Yucatán.

Worship administrator elected to national post

Matthew Clark

DALLAS, Texas—Matthew Clark, administrator of the Office of Worship of the Diocese of Erie, was elected in October to serve as the vice chairperson for the Federation of Diocesan Liturgical Commissions (FDLC).

Clark was nominated and elected for the post at the FDLC's national meeting in Dallas. FDLC represents Roman Catholic diocesan offices of worship and liturgical commissions throughout the United States. It co-sponsors the national meeting with the U.S. Bishops' Committee on Divine Worship (BCDW).

According to Clark, the FDLC will be busy in the coming months working with the BCDW to prepare for the revised Rite of Marriage for the Catholic Church. The revised rite is expected to go into effect in 2016.

"We are designing workshops and formation guides for the new rite and are about to announce national formation days," Clark says.

In addition, the FDLC is creating webinars for RCIA formation.

Meals require

- Prayer
- Companionship
- Thoughtfulness

BY ANALIDA BRAEGER | SPECIAL TO FAITHLIFE

Dining and eating: two seemingly identical verbs. Yet, the two experiences can't be more opposite.

Dining implies a communal experience; eating, on the other hand, is a mere function necessary for survival. Dining involves preparation, companionship and, often, prayer. Eating requires the basic act of chewing and swallowing food.

With Thanksgiving and Christmas fast-approaching, it's an opportune time to reflect on the spiritual nature of food preparation and dining. Preparing a meal is a ritual that is synergistic and sublime. Like any ritual, it encompasses a few necessary steps:

Menu selection

Choose the freshest ingredients possible. Fresh ingredients deepen our connection to God's great bounty, and to those individuals who have lovingly planted and harvested our food.

In the acclaimed movie "Babette's Feast," Babette elevates dining to a spiritual experience through her careful selection of foods and meticulous preparation. She pours all her money and her love of cooking into preparing the multi-course celebratory meal that honors the 100th birthday of her host's father. Interestingly, for the Christian, there are 12 individuals seated at the well-appointed table.

Table setting

For special occasions, it's natural to use our best china, silverware and fresh cut flowers to create an atmosphere that enhances the dining experience. A Chinese proverb says: "When you have only two pennies left in the world, buy a loaf of bread with one, and a lily with the other." This proverb addresses the value of aesthetics: Beauty is food for the soul; bread is food for the body.

Writer Analida Braeger always selects fresh foods for her everyday meals and holiday feasts.

Relaxation

As you prepare dinner, play soothing music and, if possible, do prep work in advance to minimize a frenzied rush. The French summarize the concept of efficiency in the kitchen as mise en place, which translates into "put in place." Cooking is a process.

An ancient story tells the tale of the teacher who invites his pupil over for dinner. The master disappears into the kitchen. After what seems like a long time, the pupil calls out: "Is it ready?" "Not yet," the master replies. Finally, the master appears with the meal. The student takes a bite and says, "This is wonderful. What is in it?" The master replies: "Time."

Take time to stir, to taste, to see, to smell. By using all of our senses, we heighten our awareness and become one with the process.

Prayerfulness

Dining and prayer share a strong bond. Jesus at the Last Supper is a prime example. Throughout the Gospeles, Jesus is depicted sharing food with a few people and with as many as 5,000. Banquets and feasts, including the wedding at Cana, further reflect the miracles that can happen when a meal is lovingly prepared.

The sacred connection between food and praise predates the Christian era. The ancients prayed for a good harvest; even cave paintings point to the indisputable human recognition of the divine.

Companionship

We can eat alone, but we cannot dine alone. Nowhere is companionship a more prominent element of dining than sharing Holy Communion. Jesus invites us to his table to enjoy a meal. As an entire parish community, we share in the gifts of the Eucharist, and through our prayer God.

As we approach the beginning of another busy culinary season, take steps to dine instead of just eat. Invite someone into your home who might otherwise be eating alone.

Concerns of family life at center of Synod

VATICAN CITY (CNS)—As members of the Synod of Bishops this month concluded work on the second of three chapters in their working document, they continued to call for a tone and for a language that is clear, simple and encourages people to see it is possible to live the vocation of marriage and family life.

At the same time, most of the synod's 13 working groups—for according to language asked for a greater use of Scripture in the synod's text, including examples of holy couples and Jesus' interactions with a variety of family members, including parents who asked him to heal their children.

Two groups said the working document, which they are amending and planning to give to Pope Francis, does not contain a concise definition of marriage. "This is a serious defect," said English Group D, led by Cardinal Thomas C. Collins of Toronto.

The focus of small group work Oct. 10-13 was the section of the working document titled, "The Discernment of the Family Vocation," which included a summary of the biblical vision of the family, ways families strengthen their faith, and the role the family plays within the church.

At least two groups said the church needed an in-depth treatise on the Christian understanding of marriage and family life.

Several groups urged a stronger mention of marriage as a vocation like priesthood and consecrated life, and an acknowledgment that strong families are the "seedbed" of strong vocations to all three.

Pope Francis and Cardinal Philippe Ouédraogo, Burkina Faso, leave a session of the Synod of Bishops on the family at the Vatican Oct. 15.

Synod Facts

- In 1967, Pope Paul VI established the Synod of Bishops in the contemporary Catholic Church.
- The word "synod" derives from the Greek word "synodos," meaning "to walk together." It is synonymous with the word "council."
- The prototype of all church synods and councils is the Council of Jerusalem, which took place about 48 A.D., and is described in the 15th chapter of the Acts of the Apostles. At that council, the Apostles—under the leadership of Saints Peter and James—decided that Gentile converts to Christianity need not follow certain dietary and other laws prescribed in Jewish law.
- The Commission for the Elaboration of the Final Report oversees the preparation of the final text of the synod document, that ultimately is consigned by the Holy Father who is responsible for decisions.

■ October's Synod of Bishops included more than 350 participants represented in the following categories:

- 270 Synod Fathers
 - 74 cardinals, 6 patriarchs, 1 major archbishop, 72 archbishops, 102 bishops, 2 parish priests, 13 religious
- 18 married couples
- 24 invited experts and collaborators
- 51 auditors
- 14 fraternal delegates

■ Council provides resource on domestic violence against women

WASHINGTON (CNS)—The National Council of Catholic Women has developed a resource manual called "Women Healing the Wounds" that provides information about the impact of domestic violence and the church's response to it.

The 52-page document in English and Spanish is available to download free at <http://nccw.org> in the site's "Spotlight" section. It includes a customizable safety flier, a section on teen-dating violence, various resources and Catholic teaching.

"We are hopeful this new resource will give courage to victims to leave their abuser as well as educate others on the signs exhibited by persons experiencing domestic violence," Sheila Hopkins, NCCW president, said in a statement.

■ India's Missionaries of Charity to end their adoption work

KOLKATA, India (CNS)—The Missionaries of Charity will close their adoption centers in India, citing new regulations that would allow nontraditional families to adopt children, reported ucanews.com.

Founded by Blessed Teresa of Kolkata, the congregation runs orphanages across India. The nuns decided on this voluntarily after the Missionaries of Charity headquarters was informed about complying with the new Guidelines Governing Adoption of Children by federal Ministry of Women and Child Development.

"If we were to continue the work set up by Mother Teresa, complying (with) all the provisions would have been difficult for us," according to an Oct. 10 congregation statement.

The guidelines, issued in July, aim to regulate adoptions nationwide. They require all applications and processing to be done online and based on the seniority of applicants at the time of application. They say a single woman is eligible to adopt a child of any gender but that a single man is not eligible to adopt a female child. They also say parents shall be given an opportunity to view the photographs, child study and medical examination reports of up to six children.

Father Joseph Chinnayann, deputy secretary-general of the national bishops' conference in India, said the first clause of the guidelines would mean that unmarried adults in same-sex relationships, couples living together, and those divorced or separated could adopt children, contrary to the church's thinking about family and parenting, he said.

■ Vatican creates homeless shelter

VATICAN CITY (CNS)—The Vatican opened the "Gift of Mercy," a shelter for homeless men, just a few hundred yards away from St. Peter's Square.

Housed in a result-built building, the shelter was created by and is run with funds from the papal almoner, who has taken a variety of initiatives to assist the homeless people in the area surrounding the Vatican.

Archbishop Konrad Krajewski, Pope Francis' almoner, inaugurated the Konrad Oct. 7 by celebrating Mass for the first guests. The shelter offers 34 beds in an open-floor, partitioned dormitory, according to a statement from the Almoner's Office Oct. 12.

Walls never withstand the test of history

Editor's Notes

Mary

ancient papal title of Pontifex Maximus, or in English, "The Greatest Pontiff," or "The Great Bridge-Builder." In most of his messages, tweets and exhortations, he talks about dialogue instead of argument, encounter over isolation, mercy in place of quick judgment.

I look to my own three sons, whose generation seems to naturally follow the pope's suggestions. Mostly, they don't judge others harshly. Maybe technology has put a crimp on their face-to-face encounters, but overall they can't make any sense out of building a wall. It's not part of their lexicon.

Anyone who knows and understands history would agree with Pope Francis: Walls always fall down. As Sir Winston Churchill said after World War II: "Those who fail to learn from history are doomed to repeat it." The only thing the infamous Berlin Wall did was to atrophy the human spirit.

Bishop Lawrence Persico wants the Diocese of Erie to build bridges, too. He has been receiving a great deal of information recently from the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops about efforts to reach out to refugees affected by civil war and terrorism in the Middle East and elsewhere. (See story below on how to make a difference.)

There is much we, as Christians, can do beyond donating money, although that is vital. We can educate ourselves about all of the issues that created and continue to exacerbate the problems we face in the world today.

On Oct. 21, Carolyn Woo, president and CEO of Catholic Relief Services, delivered the prestigious Thomas J. and Mary H. Loftus Lecture on Catholic Thought and Action at Gannon University. Her insights on the global level are most helpful when it comes to taking action and making informed decisions.

Be sure to read the next issue of FaithLife that will feature a question-and-answer session with Woo.

REACH OUT to SYRIA

How can you help refugees?

Erie Bishop Lawrence Persico has expressed his solidarity with the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB) by asking Catholics here to act on behalf of refugees forced to flee violence in Syria, Afghanistan and Iraq.

"Considering this refugee crisis, we have a responsibility to respond to the needs of these people," Bishop Persico says. "We have to remember as citizens of the United States, that unless we are Native Americans, we are all immigrants. This country was built by immigrants."

In September, Archbishop Joseph E. Kurtz, USCCB president, issued an appeal that Catholics in the United States welcome refugees fleeing Syria and elsewhere.

Bishop Persico endorses the following recommendations of the USCCB Committee on Migration:

Pray for migrants and refugees

Write to President Barack Obama at www.whitehouse.gov/contact, urging him to expand U.S. resettlement efforts of refugees

Urge members of Congress to provide aid for refugee host countries

Teacher assumes reins of equestrian program

BY MARY SOLBERG | FAITHLIFE

Kennedy Catholic High School teacher Brigid Williams Tebaldi rides one of her horses that will be available to students in the new Equestrian Club.

Quarters. Thoroughbreds. Paints and ponies. These horses are the newest teachers of students attending the Kennedy Catholic Family of Schools in Mercer County.

Beginning this fall, students in grades kindergarten through 12 are participating in a new equestrian program run by teacher Brigid Williams Tebaldi.

"There are a lot of little life lessons you can learn from horses," says the 23-year-old Tebaldi, who teaches AP chemistry, AP biology, honors chemistry, and anatomy and physiology at Kennedy Catholic High School.

A graduate of Allegheny College in Meadville, Tebaldi is excited to share her enthusiasm for her equine friends. About 22 students already have signed up for the Equestrian Club, the latest extracurricular activity offered by the school system, which includes Kennedy Catholic High School and Middle School, and St. John Paul II Elementary.

Club members will pay for discounted riding lessons on Saturdays at the 50-acre Five Fillies Farm in nearby New Wilmington, Pa. Students will conduct fundraising activities and community service projects.

"We're hoping this program will enhance the programs Kennedy already has," Tebaldi says.

Tebaldi's parents, Jim and Lynn Williams, own the land on which Five Fillies Farm is located, but Tebaldi runs the business. Taking care of horses has been in her blood since she was a toddler.

For her, horses teach responsibility and respect, reduce stress and provide good exercise.

"Horses are large animals and if you don't take care of them right away they'll let you know it," Tebaldi says. "They teach kids you have to give respect in order to get it."

Another benefit, she says, is that horses don't care what you look like or what you wear. According to Tebaldi, they are trusting and non-judgmental.

Father Michael Allison, president of the Kennedy Catholic schools, is grateful to the Williams family and Tebaldi for the use of their farm and facilities.

"The club will be a great added benefit for our KCFCS students and families," Father Allison says.

In addition to her teaching duties at Kennedy, Tebaldi gives riding lessons and competes in the equine sport of three-day eventing. She has won first-place awards at national equestrian shows.

For more information about the club, contact Tebaldi at tebaldi@kennedycatholicschools.org. Learn more about Five Fillies Farm at www.fivefilliesfarm.com.

Prep/Villa raise $10.5 million in one year

FAITHLIFE staff

When it comes to fundraising for education, Erie's Catholic Preparatory School—which includes Cathedral Prep and Villa Maria Academy—is second to none.

In fiscal year 2014-15, the schools raised a record $10.5 million, according to Chris Hagerty, director of strategic initiatives.

"I think it's going to be hard to have an encore," Hagerty says.

"It's an astonishing amount for any Catholic high school in the entire country."

The fundraising total was announced Oct. 15 at the President's Leadership Council reception held at the Hilbert Family Library

Commons at Cathedral Prep in downtown Erie. Bishop Lawrence Persico was in attendance, along with about 200 alumni, supporters and donors.

A couple of significant events occurred in the 2014-15 fiscal year that contributed to the grant total. Hagerty says, Last November, donors gave a record $2.9 million in a one-day, online fundraising campaign, and multiple monetary gifts have been given to fund the new Prep and Villa Events Center on W. 12th Street.

"We're very proud of the supporters we have. It's a testimony to the commitment our donors have to Prep and Villa," Hagerty adds.

The Prep and Villa Events Center has been under construction for more than a year and is set to open late this fall.

Bishop Persico is expected to preside at a Mass and a blessing/dedication ceremony in the center's gymnasium the day before Thanksgiving.

As for the consistently generous contributions made to Prep and Villa, Hagerty says it's all about "giving people an opportunity to make a difference."
