For the 17th straight year, WJET-TV 24 will broadcast Midnight Mass on Christmas Eve live from St. Peter Cathedral in Erie.

The program begins at 11:30 p.m. and includes a message from Bishop Lawrence Persico as well as music by the cathedral choir under the direction of William Herring.

Advent Resources

To help enhance this joyful period that prepares us for the commemoration of the Incarnation, the following resources are available:

Advent calendar
An Advent family calendar from Catholic Charities is available on the diocesan website at www.ErieRCD.org. This printable calendar includes a Scripture verse, reflection and activity for every day of the season.

Jesse Tree
Faith magazine has created Jesse Tree ornaments to help reflect on the story of salvation from the creation of the world through the birth of Jesus.

Download a free, printable set of Jesse Tree ornaments at www.ErieRCD.org/jesstree.htm. Each of the 28 ornaments is accompanied by a Scripture verse and explanation of what the symbol represents. The ornaments are available in both small and large sizes.

Clergy appointments

The Most Rev. Lawrence Persico, J.C.L., Bishop of Erie, announces the following clergy appointments:

Father Daniel Hoffman, appointed parochial vicar of St. Luke Parish, Erie, and assistant master of ceremonies for the Diocese of Erie. Effective November 30, 2012.

Father John Malthaner, appointed dean of the Erie East Deaconry through June 2015. Effective October 31, 2012.

A legacy of faith

By Jason Koshinski
FaithLife editor

ERIE — The Catholic Foundation recently recognized a number of donors for helping to make a lasting difference in the faith lives of people throughout the 13 counties of the Diocese of Erie.

The foundation inducted new donors into its Legacy Society Nov. 10 during a Mass and ceremony at St. Mark Catholic Center's chapel in Erie. More than 140 people attended the event, which was followed by a reception in the St. Mark library.

Those inducted into the Legacy Society have either made a planned gift through the foundation or have established an endowment that will provide a perpetual source of funding for ministries of the diocese, Catholic organizations, parishes and schools. Honorees received a Legacy Society pin blessed by the Most Rev. Lawrence Persico, who celebrated Mass. Those who made a cash gift to the foundation of $1,000 or more received certificates.

Creating a legacy or a perpetual endowment is something that anyone can do without jeopardizing their operating income, said Dr. Emma Lee McCloskey, president of The Catholic Foundation.

"These are gifts from people's assets rather than from their checkbook," McCloskey said.

Commonly gifted assets include will bequests and retirement plan beneficiary designations.

"People can really look at what is most important in their life and they can help to make that ministry blossom through a fund that is going to be there forever," McCloskey said.

By examining their values,

Nativity story's significance continues to unfold today, pope writes

By Carol Glatz and Francis X. Rocca
Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY — The Nativity story, like the whole story of Christ, is not merely an event in the past, but has unfolding significance for people today, with implications for such issues as the limits of political power and the purpose of human freedom, Pope Benedict writes in his third and final volume on the life and teachings of Jesus.

"Jesus of Nazareth: The Infancy Narratives" is only 132 pages long, yet it includes wide-ranging reflections on such matters as the significance of the virgin birth and the distinctive views of nature in ancient pagan and Judeo-Christian cultures.

The book was formally presented at the Vatican Nov. 20, and was scheduled for publication in English and eight other languages in 50 countries Nov. 21.

In the book, Pope Benedict examines Jesus' birth and childhood as recounted in the Gospels of Sts. Matthew and Luke. His interpretation of the biblical texts refers frequently to the work of other scholars and draws on a variety of academic fields, including linguistics, political science, art history and the history of science.

The book's publication completes the three-volume "Jesus of Nazareth" series, which also includes "From the Baptism in the Jordan to the Transfiguration" (2007) and "Holy Week: From the Entrance into Jerusalem to the Resurrection" (2011).

Jesuit Father Federico Lombardi, Vatican spokesman, said at the Nov. 20 book launch that the three books are the "fruit of a long inner journey" by Joseph Ratzinger, whose personal views they represent. While much of what the pope says is accepted Catholic dogma, the texts themselves are not part of the church's magisterium and their arguments are free to be disputed, Father Lombardi said.

In his new book, the pope argues that Matthew and Luke, in their Gospel accounts, set out to "write history, real history that had actually happened, admittedly interpreted and understood in the context of the word of God."

"The pope calls the virgin birth and the resurrection 'cornerstones' of Christian faith, since they show God acting directly and decisively in the material world."

"These two moments are a scandal to the modern spirit," which expects and allows God to act only in ideas, thoughts and the spiritual world, not the material, he writes. Yet it is not illogical or irrational to suppose that God possesses creative powers and power over matter, otherwise "then he is simply not God."

Celebrating church's universality, pope creates new cardinals

By Francis X. Rocca
Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY — Recalling that Christ's mission transcends "all ethnic, national and religious particularities," Pope Benedict XVI created six new cardinals from four different continents, representing the Latin rite of the Catholic Church as well as two Eastern Catholic Churches.

The churchmen who joined the College of Cardinals Nov. 24 were U.S. Archbishop James Harvey, 63, former prefect of the papal household; Lebanon's Maronite Patriarch Bechara Rai, 72; Indian Archbishop Basilio Cleemis Thottunkal, 53, head of the Syro-Malankara Catholic Church; Nigerian Archbishop John Olorunfemi Olayekan, 68, of Abuja; Colombian Archbishop Ruben Salazar Gomez, 70, of Bogota; and Philippine Archbishop Luis Tagle, 55, of Manila.

particular the fact that the church is the church of all peoples, so she speaks in the various cultures of the different continents," the pope said during the hour-long service in St. Peter's Basilica. "Amid the polyphony of the various voices, she raises a single harmonious song to the living God."

At the end of the ceremony, the College of Cardinals had 211 members, 120 of whom were under the age of 80 and thus eligible to vote in a conclave to elect a new pope.

IN THE U.S.

■ Lawsuits' dismissal called disappointing but won't end legal challenge

Judges in two separate rulings Nov. 27 dismissed lawsuits filed by Catholic organizations and dioceses in Pennsylvania and Tennessee challenging the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services mandate that undermines religious liberty, requiring employers to include coverage for contraceptives, sterilization and some abortion-inducing drugs free of charge, even if the employer is morally opposed to such services. Catholic leaders in both states expressed disappointment but also some hope the rulings left the door open to refiling their claims. Two days later, a federal appeals court in St. Louis granted a temporary injunction against enforcement of the mandate while a Catholic business owner prepares an appeal of a lower court ruling that rejected his claim the federal requirement is a burden on his religious rights because he is morally opposed to providing contraceptive coverage.

In Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh Bishop David Zubik said Nov. 28 that he was disappointed in the U.S. District Court ruling but "very encouraged that it was 'dismissed without prejudice.' That means that we have every right to file again in the future." In Tennessee, the Nashville Diocese in a statement said the order of dismissal by the U.S. District Court there "does not foreclose the bringing of similar claims once the alleged administrative change to the mandate takes place."

Editor's note: The lawsuit filed by the Diocese of Erie was still in court awaiting a ruling as of this writing.

■ Boston 'parish collaboratives' seen as best use for limited resources

A pastoral plan approved by Boston Cardinal Sean O'Malley calls for the Boston Archdiocese to organize its 288 parishes into approximately 135 groups called "parish collaboratives." Led by one pastor, a group of priests, deacons and lay ecclesial ministers, called a pastoral team, would provide pastoral services to parishes in the collaborative. Under the plan, each parish in the collaborative group will maintain its separate identity and retain control of its own property and assets. Cardinal O'Malley said the new pastoral plan comes in response to current challenges faced by the Catholic Church in Boston, and could change if those realities improve. He approved the plan Nov. 15. Called "Disciples in Mission," the plan identified parishes' main challenges: declining Mass attendance, shrinking numbers of priests and trained lay and an increasing number of parishes unable to sustain themselves financially.

■ New York Archdiocese announces 26 schools 'at risk of closure'

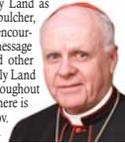

The New York Archdiocese has announced that 26 of the 159 regional, parish and archdiocesan elementary schools are at risk of closing next June. In addition, St. Agnes Boys High School in Manhattan also is at risk of closing at the end of the current school year. The Nov. 26 announcement of "at risk" schools comes two years after the archdiocese closed 20 schools as part of a reconfiguration plan. A decision about the future of Catholic schools on New York's Staten Island has been postponed until January while the region continues to struggle with the effects of Hurricane Sandy. Archdiocesan officials are meeting with local pastors, principals, administrators and elected officials for in-depth discussions on how to best serve the needs of school families.

AROUND THE WORLD

■ Cardinal O'Brien visits Holy Land with message of solidarity, peace

On the eve of his first trip to the Holy Land as grand master of the Knights of the Holy Sepulcher, Cardinal Edwin O'Brien said he hoped to encourage the region's Christian minority with a message of solidarity from Pope Benedict XVI and other Catholics in the West. "The church in the Holy Land has been under unfriendly domination throughout the centuries and the fact that we still exist there is almost a miracle," Cardinal O'Brien said Nov. 24. "We have to do everything we can as a Catholic people to encourage them and to let them know that we are one with them in their struggle." The cardinal, a former archbishop of Baltimore whom Pope Benedict named to lead the chivalric order in August 2011, left Rome Nov. 26 for a weeklong pilgrimage whose itinerary was to include Jerusalem; Bethlehem, West Bank; and Amman, Jordan. The cardinal also planned to visit a few of the more than 100 institutions that the knights support in the region, including parishes, schools and Bethlehem University.

PEOPLE

■ March for Life board of directors elects successor to late Nellie Gray

Jeanne Monahan is the new full-time president of the March for Life Education & Defense Fund, which organizes and runs the March for Life in Washington each January. The organization's board of directors unanimously voted to appoint Monahan to the post. She succeeds the late Nellie Gray, founder and president, who died in August at age 86. Monahan, a former board member, had been serving as interim president since Gray's death. "Jeanne is a strong pro-life advocate who will continue the strong leadership of Nellie Gray and bring us closer to a culture of life," said Patrick Kelly, chairman of the board. Prior to her appointment, Monahan was director of the Center for Human Dignity at the Family Research Council in Washington, serving as a spokeswoman on life issues and as a regular media contributor on topics related to the dignity of human life. Before working for the council, she served in various capacities at the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

By the Way...

Bishop Lawrence Persico has been visiting a number of parishes for the official installation of new pastors. In recent practice, the local dean installed a new pastor. The dean is a priest appointed by the bishop to help him oversee the parishes in a specific geographical area, or deanery. In a letter to priests, Bishop Persico said he would be doing the installations as a way to underscore the bond the bishop and his priests share.

He installed Father William O'Brien Oct. 27 as pastor of St. Andrew Parish in Erie. On Dec. 1 and 2, he met parishioners at St. Luke and St. Mary of the Immaculate Conception in Erie for the installation of Father John Malthaner and Father Thomas Aleksa as pastors of the respective parishes.

Bishop Persico's presence at the installations has the added benefit of giving him additional opportunities to meet people at parishes throughout the diocese.

Following his installation Oct. 1 and coming off the recent first meeting of the U.S. bishops, Bishop Persico has had a busy first two months.

The church at St. Michael Parish in Fryburg, which has been closed since Oct. 1 for replastering and repainting, will reopen with the children's Mass on Christmas Eve at 5:15 p.m. The church is expected to be completed by Dec. 10, said Father Skip Davis, pastor of St. Michael. The next two weeks will give the parish a chance to clean up and put things back into place.

At the Christmas Eve Mass, the parish children will pray the Stations of the Nativity. A number of them will be wearing T-shirts with depictions of particular stations that they will get to keep. The 14 stations include the annunciation, the visitation, the birth of John the Baptist, Joseph's dream, the Nativity, the appearance of the angels, the shepherds and the Magi at the manger, the presentation, the flight into Egypt, the massacre of the innocents and the return of the Holy Family to Galilee.

In the new year, the parish will invite Bishop Persico to celebrate Mass in the newly renovated church, Father Davis said. A date has not yet been set. For photos of the renovation, visit www.st-michael-church.org.

Pope Benedict XVI has officially joined millions around the globe on the social media network Twitter. On Dec. 3, the Vatican revealed the pope's new personal Twitter account, @Pontifex. The Holy Father will answer a question in his first tweet Dec. 12. Anyone can send in a question via the hashtag #askpontifex or #B16. Vatican officials said the pope will be composing the tweets for the new account himself. For the first tweet from the account, the pope will also press the button to send the tweet himself. But after that, others will send the tweets on his behalf.

The handle "Pontifex" was chosen because it means "pope and bridge builder."

Bishops agree on need for better preaching, more penance; OK Day cause

By Catholic News Service

BALTIMORE — During their annual fall general assembly in Baltimore Nov. 12-15, the U.S. bishops voted down a document on the troubled U.S. economy, passed documents on penance and better preaching, approved a reorganization of their Communications Department and endorsed the sainthood cause of Dorothy Day.

The bishops also met in executive session Nov. 14 and 15. On the assembly's opening day, the bishops discussed the nation's troubled economy and what their response to it should be, but a day later their proposed document,

"The Hope of the Gospel in Difficult Times: A Pastoral Message on Work, Poverty and the Economy," did not gain the two-thirds vote required for passage.

When it was prepared Nov. 12, some bishops criticized the document for being too long to be practical and for failing to include a variety of points and historical references.

On the assembly's second day, the bishops approved their first new document in 30 years on preaching. The document, "Preaching the Mystery of Faith: The Sunday Homily," allows priests and deacons to connect the Sunday homily with people's daily lives.

The document was prepared by the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops' Committee on Clergy, Consecrated Life and Vocations, chaired by Archbishop Robert Carroll of St. Louis.

When he introduced the document Nov. 12, the archbishop said preaching must be done "more effectively in the context of the new evangelization... Our people hunger for better preaching, preaching that would help them rediscover their faith."

The bishops also overwhelming approved — in a 236-vote — an exhortation encouraging Catholics to take advantage of the sacrament of penance, or reconciliation.

The text was prepared Nov. 12, some bishops criticized the document for being too long to be practical and for failing to include a variety of points and historical references. On the assembly's second day, the bishops approved their first new document in 30 years on preaching. The document, "Preaching the Mystery of Faith: The Sunday Homily," allows priests and deacons to connect the Sunday homily with people's daily lives.

On a voice vote, the bishops endorsed the sainthood cause of Dorothy Day, co-founder of the Catholic Worker movement.

New York Cardinal Timothy Dolan, USCCB president, is promoting Day's cause, her Catholic Worker ministry was based in New York City. The cause was first undertaken by one of Cardinal Dolan's predecessors in New York, Cardinal John O'Connor.

Cardinal Dolan and other bishops who spoke Nov. 13, including some who had met Day, called her sainthood cause an opportune moment in the life of the U.S. church.

The bishops also approved expanding the memorial for Blessed Francis Xavier Seelos, a German-born Redemptorist priest who ministered throughout antebellum-era America for more than 20 years. Archbishop Thomas Rodi of Mobile, Ala., noted that Blessed Seelos ministered at a time when "immigrants were not welcomed well in many circumstances," which he said as contemporary significance.

A year after U.S. Catholics began using a new translation of the missal at Masses, the bishops agreed to begin revising the Liturgy of the Hours — updating hymns, psalms, various canticles, psalm prayers, some antiphons, biblical readings and other components of the liturgical prayers used at various parts of the day.

Archbishop Gregory Aymond of New Orleans, chairman of the Committee on Divine Worship, said the work would probably take three to five years to complete and the aim would be to more accurately reflect the original Latin texts.

In his presidential address to open the assembly, Cardinal Dolan Nov. 12 told the bishops they cannot engage culture, dialogue with others or confront challenges unless they first recognize their own sins and experience the grace of repentance.

The cardinal also said the sacrament of penance was something the USCCB planned to stress for all Catholics year-round with reflections on re-embracing Friday as a day of penance, including the possible restitution of abstinence on all Fridays.

St. Michael the Archangel Parish in DuBois celebrates 100 years

DUBOIS — The 100th anniversary celebration of St. Michael the Archangel Parish in DuBois concluded Nov. 18 with a Mass celebrated by the Most Rev. Lawrence Persico. The Mass was followed by a dinner and dance at the Bellamauro.

The anniversary celebration kicked off June 5 with a concert by Irish singer Dana. Parishioners also took a trip to a Pittsburgh Pirates game and to Seneca Allegany Casino.

"St. Michael is a strong faith community based on some very strong roots," said Father Ed Walk, who has served as a priest in residence at the parish for four years. "There are a lot of ethnic roots in the parish and it really shows how strong the faith of ethnic communities can be. From that foundation, we have a very lively and active parish."

In the early 1900s, the Catholic population of DuBois, made up mainly of Poles and Slavs, increased to the point where the two parishes at the time (St. Catherine of Siena and St. Joseph) were overcrowded. A committee of lay people voted to build a new church under the patronage of St. Michael the Archangel.

Plans were drawn up for a large and comfortable church, convent and school. They had to be scaled down with the outbreak of World War I, but by 1912 the basement of the church was completed. Furnished with an altar, sanctuary necessities, chairs and an organ, all the church needed was a pastor.

Bishop John Fitzmaurice blessed the cornerstone May 30, 1912. The following year, he assigned Father Joseph Rajs, a native of Poland, as the parish's first pastor.

Under the direction of Father Edward Pawlikowski, also a native of Poland, the church structure was completed. The first Mass in the newly finished church was celebrated in April 1917. Father Joseph Pol, who served as pastor from 1935-48, attended to the educational needs of the parish children and preservation of its Polish heritage. He initiated Polish language classes and brought the Holy Family of Nazareth Sisters to St. Michael in 1936 to conduct full time catechetical instructions. In the 1960s, a new religious education program was established with the aid of the Mission Helpers of the Sacred Heart.

Father Dan Dymyski's activity in community affairs helped lead to the construction of St. Michael Terrace, a housing facility for the elderly, in 1982. From 1982 to 2003, St. Michael was under the pastoral care of Msgr. Henry Krebs, who maintained the legacy of the parish's Polish culture through the local Pulaski Club and various activities.

Father David Foradori has served as pastor of St. Michael the Archangel since 2004.

Bishop Lawrence Persico greets a young parishioner Nov. 18 following the 100th anniversary Mass at St. Michael the Archangel Parish in DuBois.

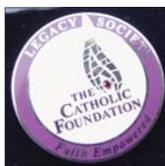

Information from "Shepherds and Sheep — A History of the Diocese of Erie: Volume III" by Msgr. Robert Barocio was used to compile this report.

The Catholic Foundation inducts donors into Legacy Society

Catholics can determine what spiritually moves them and then decide how to use their estate planning tools to support that ministry, she said.

"Despite the fact that the economy has been very challenging to families, what I hear them say is their religious core means so much to them—receiving the sacraments, attending their church—their faith remains with them throughout the years," McCloskey said. "Generation after generation, they see the impact it has on their family members, children and grandchildren. They want to preserve and revitalize ministries that were key to their development."

Inductees to The Catholic Foundation's Legacy Society received a pin blessed by Bishop Lawrence Persico.

Those ministries include helping the struggling with poverty, pastoral care by priests and outreach by religious, along with participation in the Curtillo movement and Camp Notre Dame. Others were recognized for supporting the Roman Catholic Chapel at Millcreek Mall in Erie. A portion of the chapel's rent is funded through The Catholic Foundation's Evangelization Endowment.

"Everyone has their own individual reasons for giving, but the church and their faith is what ties them together," McCloskey said.

In 2007, the foundation began with four endowments totaling $5.7 million. Since then, it has grown to 20 endowments—including church, school and Catholic organization endowments and individually named endowments—currently valued at $8.2 million. As of this year,

The Catholic Foundation has distributed more than $1 million through its various endowments to assist people throughout the diocese, McCloskey said.

In the past year, endowments have funded numerous efforts including: workshops for health ministers, retired clergy health-care needs, peer ministry team formation, chastity education, youth faith formation, inner city pastoral outreach and tuition assistance for children in pre-school and kindergarten at Catholic schools.

This was the third Legacy Society recognition event since The Catholic Foundation's inception in 2007; previous induction ceremonies were held in 2009 and 2010.

Nativity story's significance continues to unfold today, pope writes

and challenges for his readers.

For example, considering the angel's appearance to the shepherds, who then "went with haste" to meet the child savior, the pope asked "How many Christians make haste today, where the things of God are concerned?" Pope Benedict examines the political context of the time of Jesus' birth, which featured both the so-called "Pax Romana" — the widespread peace brought by the Roman ruler Caesar Augustus — and King Herod's thirst for power, which led to the slaughter of the innocents.

"Pax Christi is not necessarily opposed to Pax Augusti," he writes. "Yet the peace of Christ surpasses the peace of Augustus as heaven surpasses earth."

The political realm has "its own sphere of competence and responsibility," it oversteps those bounds when it "claims divine status and divine attributes" and makes promises it cannot deliver.

The other extreme comes with forms of religious persecution when rulers "tolerate no other kingdom but their own," he writes.

Any sign God announces "is given not for a specific political situation, but concerns the whole history of humanity," he writes.

The pope writes that the Three Wise Men philosophy and rationality.

"They represent the inner dynamic of religion toward self-transcendence, which involves the search for truth, the search for the true God," the pope writes.

The pope also argues that the star of Bethlehem was a true celestial event.

It "seems to be an established fact," he writes, that the conjunction of Jupiter and Saturn happened in 7-6 B.C., which "as we have seen is now thought likely to have been when Jesus was born."

A key topic in the book is the role of human freedom in God's divine plan for humanity.

"The only way (God) can redeem man, who was created free, is by means of a free 'yes' to his will," the pope writes. It is precisely "the moment of free, humble yet magnificent obedience," such as Mary and Joseph showed when listening to God, "in which the loftiest choice of human freedom is made."

Jesus, too, in his human freedom, understood he was bound to obedience to his heavenly father, even at the cost of his earthly life.

The missing 12-year-old, rediscovered by an anxious Mary and Joseph in the temple, was not there "as a rebel against his parents, but precisely as an obedient (son), acting out the same obedience that leads to the cross and the resurrection," the pope writes.

Jesus' birth, life, death and resurrection is a story filled with contradiction, paradox and mystery, the pope writes, and "remains a sign of contradiction today."

"What proves Jesus to be the true sign of God is he takes upon himself the contradiction of God," Pope Benedict writes, "he draws it to himself all the way to the contradiction of the cross."

Community | Respect | Sacramentality | Service

At Gannon University, Catholic Identity looks outward as well as inward.

Service to individuals and to the world are a present-day reflection of Christ's public ministry, and so members of the Gannon community annually dedicate tens of thousands of hours to service in places like Haiti, Appalachia and neighborhoods in the Diocese of Erie.

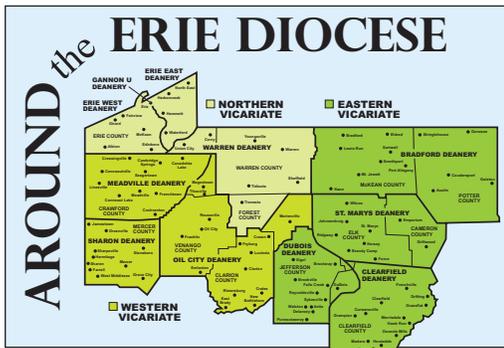

As Gannon students, faculty, staff and alumni recognize that we are called, in mind, heart, soul and deed, to serve one another, our communities and our God.

At Gannon University, Catholic Identity means something.

Believe in the possibilities.

Quick, important tips for taking good digital pictures. <http://www.ErieRCD.org/faithlife.asp>

Students at St. Joseph School, Lucinda, raise funds for area family that lost home to fire

LUCINDA — The second grade class at St. Joseph School in Lucinda recently sold lemonade to help out the Perry family in Knox, after the family lost their house to a fire. The students read the story, "Lemonade for Sale," and decided to have a lemonade stand at school. By selling lemonade to their fellow students and faculty, they raised $118 for the Perry family.

Other classes held a penny war to see which grade could raise the most funds. The school presented the family with $500 in cash and gift cards.

Religious education students at St. Mary, Reynoldsville, thinking of veterans

Volunteers collect food, help Move the Mountain at North East

NORTH EAST — Members of St. Gregory Parish in North East and several other parishes participated in the annual Move the Mountain food drive Nov. 3. Held the first Saturday in November, the Move the Mountain project raises a large portion of the North East Community Food Pantry's winter inventory.

Food items were collected at Crescent Hose Co. in North East. Volunteers sorted, packed, loaded and unloaded non-perishable food items. Donations filled a tractor trailer which will help those in need get through the winter months.

Hannah Becker (St. Gregory, Fairview), Andrea Beardsley (North East), Alex Anderson, and Joan Fye (St. Gregory, North East).

OLMC, Erie, youth make and serve dinner to seniors

ERIE — Religious education students in 4th and 6th grade at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Parish in Erie, along with their teachers Cori Oczalek and Shannon Scully, recently made and served dinner to 22 residents of Stone School Apartments in Summit Township. The residents were grateful to the students for their service. Sue Berdis, religious education facilitator, said that by serving the dinner near the Thanksgiving holiday, students were reminded about being a blessing to others.

Students at St. Boniface School, Erie, honor veterans

ERIE — The students and staff of St. Boniface School in Erie hosted a luncheon to honor area military veterans in advance of the Veterans Day holiday. Nearly 60 guests attended the annual program and luncheon, including veterans of World War II, Korea, Vietnam, Iraq and Afghanistan. They were treated to a program of patriotic songs presented by every grade level in the school, including the concert band and middle school choir. The event also provided an opportunity for students to learn from the experiences of their veteran neighbors and parishioners.

Thanksgiving at St. Michael School, Greenville

GREENVILLE — Even the tiniest of children can be thankful for what they have. Pan Cianci (pre-kindergarten) and Floss Renwick (kindergarten), teachers at St. Michael School in Greenville, held a special Thanksgiving meal for their classes Nov. 16. All students wore pilgrim outfits they made and shared a mix of traditional and non-traditional holiday food. Addison Nguyen, a pre-kindergarten student at St. Michael School in Greenville, was thankful for her holiday meal with her class.
